KEY FACTS

- The Stone Age started half a million years ago.
- The Stone Age people were hunter gatherers. This meant that they moved around often following herds of animals such as deer.
- Tools such as axes and spears, were very important and were usually made from wood and stone (flint).
- Deer antlers were used for making bowls and cups.
- There was very little technology as we know it today. However, the design of a modern axe is very similar to axes in the Stone Age.
