

Year 3 Autumn 1

We begin year 3 by transporting ourselves back ten thousand years to the time of the Stone Age people! To find out more, we will have to become archaeologists and dig through sand in the hunt for Stone Age artefacts. Once we've dusted all the sand off, we will transform into historians and try to identify the uses of these bizarre finds! Next, we will look at what evidence is left of the Stone Age people and create cave art, before producing our own Stone Age cave made from clay. After decorating it using authentic items, we will design and write a Stone Age estate agent advert selling our unique homes!

Building fires was probably the most important skill that a Stone Age person could possess, so we will be learning how to construct our own, using sparks from rocks to light them! After this, we will cook on them, before writing instructions on how to successfully build and light a fire (just in case we ever forget!)

Finally, we will put ourselves into our very own Stone age narrative, focussing on our characters and setting.
