

A Journey Through France

The children are continuing to learn more about different places within France and whether everywhere in France is like Paris. We have found out lots of reasons why Paris is one of the most visited cities in Europe, how other places differ and why people choose to visit them.

Short Stories

Last week we finished writing our short stories including a setting and character description. Some have been published on Google Classroom if you wanted to take a look but here are some excerpts:

It was a winter evening, in a dark, endless forest with no sound. No people. Nothing. The powerful wind swayed the veiny tree branches as the leaves slowly fell. Regularly, in the hours of darkness, owls hooted and the snow crunched. Hannah stumbled through the snowy, cold, endless forest while her brown, wavy hair fell down her back like a waterfall.

Dylan's heart was pounding as fast as light speed which was rare for him as he was brave. The lightning and weather reflected in his dark green eyes.... After a while, he came to a dead end and saw mysterious trees. They looked a bit like soldiers going to battle.

Persuasive Writing

We have started work on persuading people to go to a place of our choice. We can't wait to share some with you when they are finished!
